Kellogg & Andelson Accountancy Corporation Acquires Barry Ira Goldstein & Co.

Los Angeles, CA — January 20th, 2009- Kellogg & Andelson Accountancy Corporation, a leading provider of accounting services to the business community, announced that it acquired Barry Ira Goldstein & Company, a Los Angeles based accounting firm.

Mr. Barry Goldstein started his professional career working at a CPA firm in Beverly Hills nearly 40 years ago. Barry formed his own practice in 1975. During the course of Barry's success, his firm grew through a merger with another local Beverly Hills firm, over time building positive rapport in the Los Angeles business community. Barry plans on continuing his passion and will be joining the K&A team.

Kellogg & Andelson is becoming a well known name in the public accounting community as this now marks the seventh firm acquired recently. "We are pleased to welcome Mr. Goldstein's clients, to Kellogg & Andelson. K&A has now merged several firms' clients into our firm, thus improving our transitioning process and seeing very little turnover of the acquired clients. We look forward to continuing to provide the small firm feel that Mr. Goldstein's clients have come to expect, while now being able to deliver to them services they were unable to access before," said Christian Payne, President and Chief Executive Officer of Kellogg & Andelson. Mr. Payne further commented that he anticipates numerous additional acquisitions in the coming year.

“I came to the conclusion that the needs of my clients were becoming increasingly more sophisticated. It was because of this need that I united with Kellogg & Andelson. I am confident that together, with the relationships I have with my clients combined with the greater depth of services and expertise that K&A will deliver, we will form a dynamic team.” reported Barry Goldstein, owner Barry Ira Goldstein & Co.
